DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's election with traverse of Group I (claims 1-14) and a specific compound, (2Z)-(1-ethyl-1,3-dihydro-2H-benzimidazol-2-ylidene)(5-methyl-2-[[3-(2-oxopyrrolidin-1-yl)propyl]amino]pyrimidin-4-yl)acetonitrile (example 4 on page 52) in the reply filed on July 14, 2008 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that restriction is only proper if the groups are independent or distinct and there is a serious burden on the examiner. This is not found persuasive because this was not a restriction, but rather a lack of unity of invention, so the US restriction rules do not apply. As detailed in the previous restriction requirement mailed June 13, 2008, there is a lack of unity of invention and that is the standard, the examiner is not required to show distinctness or burden in the case of a national stage application.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Applicant has claimed compounds of formula I, and elected a specific compound, (2Z)-(1-ethyl-1,3-dihydro-2H-benzimidazol-2-ylidene)(5-methyl-2-[[3-(2-oxopyrrolidin-1-yl)propyl]amino]pyrimidin-4-yl)acetonitrile. Applicant has not disclosed their invention such that one skill in the art would be able to make or use the invention as claimed. Applicant has shown how to make the composition in example 4, however they do not start with a compound that is well known in the art or commercially available, even in example 1, it is unclear how one of skill in the art at the time of the invention would be able to make the starting material, and thus the elected species.

Factors to be considered in determining whether a disclosure would require undue experimentation have been summarized in Ex parte Forman, 230 USPQ 546 (BPAI 1986) and reiterated by the Court of Appeals in In re Wands, 8 USPQ2d 1400 at 1404 (CAFC 1988). The factors to be considered in determining whether undue experimentation is required include: (1) the quantity of experimentation necessary, (2) the amount of direction presented, (3) the presence or absence of working examples, (4) the nature of the invention, (5) the state of the prior art, (6) the relative skill of those in the art, (7) the predictability or unpredictability of the art, and (8) the breadth of the claims.

The quantity of experimentation necessary is large (1) due to the small amount of direction provided (2) and while there is an example directed towards the elected species, the synthesis is not described in enough detail to allow one of skill in the art to make the invention (3). The nature of the invention is synthesis of a complex organic molecule (4) and the state of the prior art is such that the compound is not known (5). The relative skill of those in the art is high (6) however the unpredictability of such a synthesis of an unknown compound is also high (7). The breadth of the claims is large due to the large number of compounds other than the elected species which are encompassed by the general formula I (8).

Conclusion

No claims are allowed. The elected species is free of the prior art.
